“At Avaya, everything we do is about experiences, and we can see how the corona virus is impacting the daily lives and experiences of people around the globe. We’ve been keeping a close eye on what’s been happening, and in the parts of the world that have been most impacted, we’ve made sure staff and customers know we’re here to support them. There is an immediate need in the education sector as campuses are shut down, as well as with nonprofits and charitable organizations that are working to fight the effects of the outbreak. These organizations especially need to maintain continuity and keep students, volunteers, and employees engaged.

Avaya is pleased to provide the business version of Avaya Spaces at no charge to educational and nonprofit organizations worldwide through August 31, 2020. With this easy-to-use cloud solution, you can connect from your Web browser or mobile app and start getting things done right away. This free Avaya Spaces offer gives users all the meeting and team collaboration features needed, including voice and video conferencing for up to 200 participants, persistent chat, and file sharing. Visit the link below to learn how you can get the free offer for this communications and collaboration solution and next-level customer support.”
